Mike brought New Yorkers together to achieve bold progress as mayor. He will unite Americans as president and get big things done. Mike led the nation's largest city through the 9/11 recovery and Hurricane Sandy. Unlike Donald Trump, who has brought chaos to the White House, Mike knows how to manage a crisis. Mike fights for what's right.

To me, "Get It done" indicates either having someone else do it or causing something to be accomplished. For example, if you are in a business meeting and the CEO says, "I don't care what you do, just get it done," she is stating that you can do it or you can get someone else to do it - as long as whatever "it" is gets accomplished, the method ...

But as I've mentioned, planning to do something doesn't mean you'll actually get it done. You can have all the tools in the world to help you prepare, but it won't matter if you always fall short of actually completing what you plan. I've come to find that the tools for doing are quite different from the tools for planning.
